A Visit to Sea World

Have you ever been to an underwater zoo? Here, sea creatures are kept in very large aquariums. It is a wonderful way to see the world beneath the waves of the sea. Read the story of a little girl's visit to the underwater zoo.

Nehal's parents often took her to different kinds of amusement parks. Of all the parks she had visited, she loved going to water parks the most. Nehal loved to swim and was fond of seeing other beautiful creatures that swam in the oceans and seas of the world. She loved to watch all the TV programmes that showed life under water.

Wordwise

The word 'aquarium' comes from the Latin word 'aqua', which means water. An aquarium is a glass container in which fish are kept.

amusement park: a place where people pay for rides and games hoardings: large boards used for advertisements tropical: parts of the world where the weather is very hot delicate: very light and fine fins: small limbs that stick out of the fish's body and help it to swim and keep its balance

After much planning, Nehal's father was taking her to Sea World, a new place that had opened near their home. Nehal had seen hoardings on her way to school, describing the wonderful creatures that lived in Sea World. She was very excited and could not wait to see them herself.

Early on Saturday morning, Nehal set out for Sea World with her father and younger brother, Rohan. Rohan loved animals too, but was a little afraid of water.

'Don't worry, Rohan, nothing will happen to you,' said Nehal to her little brother.

Nehal's father smiled as he noticed how she took care of Rohan.

Their first stop in Sea World was the tropical fish aquarium. It was a large room with walls of glass. You could see many varieties of fish through the glass walls. It was like seeing a moving rainbow. There were fish of different colours, with delicate fins and long tails.
